

Unsolicited telemarketing calls are a very serious problem. They are not just a minor inconvenience. They are disruptive, aggravating, and must be stopped. Indiana already has an effective method of blocking these very unwanted calls. The proposed FCC measures, would diminish the effect of Indiana's law and make it less effective. It would be a shame for that to happen. I'm sure that most Americans would love to have a strong method of stopping these calls. Actually, most would probably like to have all telemarketing made illegal (I know I would). Please do not give in to lobbyists for telemarketing companies. Please do what the majority of Americans would want: Stop ALL telemarketing (or at least, do not interfere with Indiana's no-call list).
